Chips

One of the best stories that the week has brought to us concerns two couples going to a local fraternity dance in a roadster, with one pair occupying the rumble seat. While riding 38 miles an hour in a 22-mile limit, a motorcycle officer pulled alongside, and after the usual wise-cracks, inquired what had happened to the "lookouts" in the rumble. And, we are told on good authority, the couple seated there came up for air about that time.

Speaking of travel, some of one of Professor Willard's sociology class visited Deanwood the other day, and spent some hours asking sociological questions of the residents there, the children playing on the street, and others who looked as if they might belong to that neighborhood. Deanwood is, as you know, that prosperous colored neighborhood out in the north-east section of the city.

And in one of Dr. Moss' classes, a student asserted that the "Colossus of Rhodes" and the "Firth of Clyde" were convolutions of the brain.

In a history class here (stop it if we've told you this one before) a student, another one this time, was taking a true-false exam, and after entering all T's and F's about which he was certain, he solemnly took out a dime, and flipped it for each question, heads for true, tails for false. The professors were uncertain as to whether or not to take away the dime, since it was undoubtedly an aid to him in the quiz.

The secret is out at last. Jimmie Fleck and Edith Norris, who fed the grand march at the Prom, were only getting in practice to lead a similar march at the Acadia spring formal last week. Observers tell us that they did the job admirably.

Much comment has been heard about The Hatchet's feature story on the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes. The peculiar thing is that the story was not far-fetched, but was true, and that the only sensational thing about the whole article is the name of the valley, which seems to be an excellent advertisement for cigarettes. Appears unusual that no one has been up there after a testimonial.

Some food for thought may be found in the comparative scholastic averages of fraternities and sororities on campus. The lowest sorority average was above the highest fraternity one. That may or may not prove anything, but what a whale of a difference a few grades make.

While a G. W. swimming team was on a trip, one girl placed cracker crumbs and salt in the bed of another. Two friends of the afflicted one kept in practice by diving on the culprit. Oh this spirit of teamwork!

G. W. football team is doing its spring practice with a baseball. Now if they just don't toss a football around as a balloon next fall, we'll be happy.

Les Jongleurs, still another club, makes its appearance on campus. Its line-up looks like a revamping of the Troubadours, and the name sounds as if somebody in the club is getting a low grade in French.

While we are on the subject of a school of journalism, the powers that be might be interested in the fact that 52 persons applied for positions as Hatchet reporters in four days last week. These are, of course, in addition to the forty-odd (no, the emphasis is not on the odd) individuals who now serve on the editorial staff of the publication. And what's more important, not nearly all of the 52 were sorority or fraternity pledges.

DEBATE GIVEN ON CHURCH IN SOVIET

Religious Policy of U. S. S. R. Is Discussed at Columbian Society

HOUSE CONDEMNS RUSSIA

Linberger and Rapoport Support Communism, Quaries and Doering Uphold Czarism

Liberals and conservatives clashed last Friday evening, March 21, at the regular weekly meeting of the Columbian Debating Society, when the present religious policy of Soviet Russia formed the subject of the debate. The liberals lost by a very close decision when the house voted to condemn Russia's attitude toward the church.

The affirmative, composed of Paul Linberger, Jr., and David Rapoport, contended that the Russian church is backward and that it stands for decay and corruption. They maintained that it constituted a threat to liberty and better living. Many of their arguments were based on the fact that the Russian church is still medieval in its development. The Buddhists and Shamarists were also criticized.

The negative, composed of Dana Quarles and Carrol Doering, attacked the policy of force and violence which the Russian government is using to attain its ends. They maintained that a policy of correction should be used in Russia, saying that the beliefs and ideals of the Russian people should be restored on a firmer basis.

After the debate, nearly everyone present spoke from the floor. Because of its widespread interest, the subject attracted many persons who expressed their opinions pro and con.

Resolved, that divorce be made legal by the expression of mutual consent after one year of marriage, Friday, March 27. The affirmative will be taken by Dana Quarles and Lewis Dembitz, and the negative by John Barber and Gilbert Rabinowitz.

Students Here For Truth And Knowledge, Not Merely For College Atmosphere

Scoring one for George Washington University at Cornell University, one of the women debaters very loyally upheld the intelligence and the honest search for wisdom as manifested by this institution of learning.

Supporting the contention that it is an unsound policy to provide a liberal arts college education to all who seek it, one of the Cornellian women declared that a great number of students attend college just for campus life.

George Washington University has only six feet of green, and still she has an enrollment of 7500— which definitely proves that those who attend George Washington do not come for college atmosphere, but for the genuine purpose of learning truth and gaining knowledge.

DEBATERS ARGUE ARMS QUESTION

Colonials Meet New York University in Stockton Hall Last Saturday

NO AWARD IN DISCUSSION Emory University To Be Met Next On Some Question In Last of March

The time-honored yet timely question of disarmament again came into the limelight as the center of a spirited discussion between the debating teams of George Washington and Washington Square College of New York University. The debate, a decision one, was held last Saturday night in Stockton Hall, the teams being represented by Dave Greenberg and Sol Stone for the visitors, while Woodfin L. Butte and Charles Laughlin did the honors for G. W. Owing to the fact that the debate was almost an hour late in getting under way, a very small audience was in attendance.

The debate was opened by the affirmative by Dave Greenberg, who contended that elimination of armaments, except for police purposes, would promote a peaceful attitude and substitute the use of pure reason for force in the settlement of national disputes. Charles Laughlin, who began for the negative, contended that disarmament can exist theoretically only. "Potential armaments," he declared, "which can readily be converted into armaments, make disarmament impossible." He then asserted that disarmament, if self being incapable of enforcement, would also render all other international agreements unenforceable.

Sol Stone in closing the constructive argument, upholding disarmament, attacked armaments as causing a spirit of aggression during times of peace as well as a fear which in turn led to the construction of more armaments, thus creating a vicious circle.

Woodfin L. Butte, who followed for the negative, characterized disarmament as impossible of definition, execution, and enforcement. He cited the present middle of the London Conference as an example of the practicality of disarmament. He furthermore contended that all our foreign investments depend upon the security provided by an army and navy.

In the rebuttals which followed the constructive arguments, the New York University team brought out that abolition of armaments can not come about at once but only as a gradual process. The George Washington team reiterated its previous arguments and maintained that the disarmament plan would completely fail during times of stress.

The varsity's next debate will be held on Tuesday, March 25, with Emory University in Stockton Hall. The subject will again be the disarmament question.

As previously announced in The Hatchet, there will be a radio debate with the University of Vermont on Wednesday, March 26, over station WJVS. On this occasion the George Washington team will uphold the affirmative side, of the disarmament question, the team's speakers being Andrew Howard and Hearst Duncan.

NEW THEATRICAL CLUB FORMED DURING WEEK

Les Jongleurs, Which Will Stross Vaudeville, Is To Meet Tonight At 7:45

Les Jongleurs, a new theatrical club organized during the past week by Midge Burnham, Dan Beattie, Marian Moulder and Janice Burroughs, is to devote its efforts to vaudeville. Its chief aim is to develop a group of trained entertainers and to prepare skits, playlets and song and dance numbers that may be presented at short notice.

Thus, in future, when University groups are giving parties where entertainment is desired, Les Jongleurs can be called on and counted upon for excellent entertainment. A lesser aim of the group is to become a proving ground for future troubadour stars. Performers trained by work in Les Jongleurs will be well prepared for the type of work done in Troubadours and can help that organization to keep on a high plane by proving their people before they receive parts in musical comedy. Les Jongleurs, then, will be a stepping stone to bigger and better Troubadour shows.

The charter members of Les Jongleurs were selected from among the present theatrical high-lights of George Washington. Some were proven by work in Troubadours, others by working in University social groups, and some because of training that they have had elsewhere.

21 Charter Members

These charter members are to set the standard for future members: Dan Beattie, Gerald Sicker, Bert Bagraskoff, Frank Westbrook, Junior Welles, Henry Nestor, Steve Nymen, George Wells, Eddie Weihe, Midge Burnham, Wilhelmina Gude, Roberta Wright, Jane Wilson, Janice Burroughs, Carolyn Braisch, Marian Moulder, Pauline Schaub, Geraldine Free, Betsy Garrett, Jean Westbrook, and Marie Siegrist.

The officers of the Club are: President, Midge Burnham; vice-president, Dan Beattie; manager, George Wells; treasurer, Roberta Wright.

In the future all members will be chosen after try-outs once or twice a year only by merit of individual ability and originality. There will be representatives of every branch of that general field, "the stage," only one or two to be chosen each year from any one branch. A list of the branches follows:

The Hatchet Advocates:
1. A School of Journalism for The George Washington University.
2. The Erection of a Student Union Building.
3. Student Support for the New Constructive Athletic Policy of the University.
4. The Abolition of Class Offices and the Organization of a Representative Student Governing Council.

WASHINGTON, D. C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1930

THE OLD CRY

For years now, The Hatchet has advocated a school of journalism to be established in George Washington University, and just as many years have passed with little or no results. The fact that this College needs one goes without saying.

George Washington is located in the capital of the United States, which is the center of more press dispatches than any other city in the country. Students from all over the world come here to college, and many of them intend to make the field of newspaper work their career. Yet we have no facilities to offer them. If we could add such a school, undoubtedly many more would come here, for no place else could offer opportunities in such endeavor as does Washington.

In the past, repeated demands to the University administration has had no effect. True, last year two courses in journalism were added to the curriculum, but one was withdrawn this year. This is a sad state of affairs in a University which claims the prestige that this one does, one which can boast the number of students that this one does. At the other large schools of the nation, not only are courses in journalism offered, but most of them have divisions of the university in which this subject is taught exclusively.

Perhaps in time this College will wake up. When it does, and when a good school of journalism is established, a large demand will be satisfied, and among the beneficial results, the character of the University publications will be materially improved.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

A series of vocational talks by women of achievement in various fields has been arranged by Mrs. Vinnie G. Barrows, secretary for women's activities. While meant primarily for freshmen in order to emphasize to them the importance of concentrating on a future vocation and selecting their college courses with a specific end in view, these talks should be of interest to every woman student in the University. The speakers are of national fame, and each an authority on the special branch which she will discuss.

As more and more women take their places in the professions and the business world and make their job their life work, it becomes increasingly important that more attention be given the selection of this job. These talks are intended to show the possibilities for promotion, the amount of initiative required, and the approximate recompense to be gained in each field.

OUR FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

The George Washington University football team for 1930 will face the most difficult schedule ever attempted by a gridiron team in the history of the school. This is a definite forward step in the athletics of the school and is only a forerunner of what may be expected in the future.

Contests with such teams as the University of Iowa, Navy, and Tulsa University place the institution on a par athletically with other large institutions throughout the country. Navy is a recognized leader in football, while Iowa is a member of the Big Ten Conference, which plays a high grade brand of football.

Intersectional games enable the institution to gain national prominence and should prove a valuable advertisement for the University. With Coach Pixlee again in charge of the gridmen, an eleven of high caliber may be expected and the school should reap large profits from their achievements.

Powers Tells P.T.A. of Children's Dishonesty

Discusses Character Education in Talk at Bethesda Elementary School

"Some Aspects of Character Education" was the subject of a talk given by Professor J. Orin Powers, before the P. T. A. of the Bethesda Elementary School, March 12. About seventy parents attended.

In answer to the question, "How bad are children and will they cheat and steal?" Dr. Powers has data showing that 96 per cent. of the grade school children will cheat and steal if they are given a chance. The reason for cheating is to make a good showing on an examination, he pointed out.

Four methods of treating dishonesty are non-recognition of the situation, reason with the pupil, bringing in the elements of prayer or religion, and corporal punishment.

"Regular attendance at motion pictures makes for dishonesty," Dr. Powers said. "According to his data, Jewish children are more honest than others in the schools."

"Do not condemn the child for a single offense. Then is the time for teaching and improvement," he stated.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR KEEPING FRIENDS

Purdue Exponent Cites Rules Which May Prove of Social Advantage

Friendship is the most valuable of a person's possessions and for the person of the average temperament it is life, success, and happiness spelled in one expression. But the power to generously make friends and keep them is, unluckily, not endowed on everyone. Too many people through thoughtlessness or carelessness unintentionally destroy friendships which they are wont to nurse.

The following are the ten commandments of friendship:

1. Don't contradict people even if you are sure they are not in the right.

2. Don't be inquisitive about the affairs of your friends.

3. Don't underrate anything because you don't possess it.

4. Don't believe everyone else is happier than you.

5. Don't conclude that you never had any opportunities in life.

6. Don't believe all the evil you hear.

7. Don't be rude to social inferiors.

8. Don't jeer at anybody's religious belief.

9. Learn to hide aches and pains.

10. Do unto others as you would be done by.

While there are exceptions to these suggestions as there are to all good rules, they hold true in general and may well be employed to advantage in the social contacts of any individual either great or small. The Purdue Exponent.

GEORGE WASHINGTON TO HAVE GLIDER CLUB

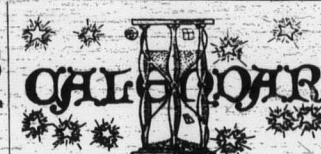

G. W. may have the first glider club in the District. Plans are under way for organizing a small group of men into the "Colonial Gliding Club," which has already ordered a glider from a nearby airplane manufacturer. The first meeting of the new club will be held in C. H. in the evening of March 21, at 8:00.

Due to the wide range of activities that the club eventually proposes, and due to the necessity for having select students in the organization, the club in its earliest days will have a limited membership. Applications to enter the club may be sent to D. R. Coombes, 1714 Rhode Island Avenue N. W.

SPRING FOOTBALL IS NEARING COMPLETION

Football, Played With a Baseball, Is Favorite With Athletes; 63 Sign Up For Fall

Spring football continues with good results, but the season has been considerably shortened because of a heavy schedule of intramural sports which are to take place in the near future. Due to the start of spring sports the spring football period of practice will end about April 1.

It is again brought to the notice of those desirous of trying out for Varsity football to report for spring practice, as they will be at a considerable handicap in the fall by not doing so.

Signals Are Tried

The whole team, both the line and the backfield, are practicing new shifts and signals which are essentials of a new system being tried out now. Practice at present consists of line and backfield shifts, blocking, and in general the right way of handling the ball. One of the main ways in which handling the ball is being brought about is by playing baseball with a football. The batter instead of hitting the ball catches it and either kicks it or throws it into the field and tries to make it count as a hit. This helps not only the batter but those in the field, since they have to get the ball and throw it to those on base.

Those signed up for football number sixty-three, which is the largest number that has ever signed up before. Last year the largest number to turn out for football was forty-one. It might be said that the prospects for next year's Varsity are the best that there have been in several years at G. W. The schedule which has been gotten for 1930 football is the best one that could be hoped for and one that is very certain to give plenty of excitement to the spectators and a more far-reaching name to George Washington athletes.

Swimming Team Loses Meet To Johns Hopkins

Contest Held at Ambassador Pool Is Decided By 200-Yard Relay

On March 17 at the Ambassador Hotel the men's swimming team of George Washington University met the Johns Hopkins swimmers. The result was very close, but when the total had been added-up it was found that the Colonials had lost by a score of 32 to 26.

The determining event was the two hundred yard relay, which Hopkins won by only a few inches. Had the Buff and Blue won this race, the result would have been reversed. This meet was marred by poor handling of the starting, and many false starts were made because of this.

The final results:
200-yard relay—Hopkins (Hanhart, Gardner, Edmunds, and Frey).
100-yard breast stroke—Edmunds (G. W.). Frey (J. H.).
50-yard dash—Longfellow (G. W.). Frey (J. H.).
440-yard swim—Polknhorn (G. W.). Hanhart (J. H.).
100-yard dash—Hanhart (J. H.). Edmunds (J. H.).
Diving—Lyman (G. W.). Strauss, G. W.).

SWIMMERS LOSE MEET WITH C. U.

Lyman and Goldberg Win Firsts For George Washington Tank Team

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS

Remaining Meets of Season Find Colonial Team Opposed to Central High School

In the final official meet of the year for both teams, the G. W. swimmers were defeated by Catholic U. last Wednesday night at the Ambassador Hotel pool by a score of 43 to 21. There was an extremely large turnout for the meet, the gallery of the Ambassador pool being filled to capacity.

"Moon" Mullen of Catholic U. was the individual star of the meet with two firsts, in the 50-yard dash and the 440-yard event. He also swam the anchor position on the relay team. G. W. scored two firsts, won by Lyman in the fancy diving event and by Goldberg in the 100-yard backstroke. Lyman has held the South Atlantic fancy diving championship and showed excellent form in the meet. The Colonials also scored when Polknhorn finished second in the 440-yard event. Four third places completed the scoring made by the G. W. natators.

Although this meet officially closes the season, G. W. still has two more meets on her schedule. Both of these meets will be with the Central High School, and should prove exciting. The summary of the G. W. C. U. meet with the winning time for each event is as follows:

G. W. CUBS ADVANCE IN POST'S COURT TOURNEY

Quarter Finals In A. A. U. Play Reached By Defeat of Eastern Preps

The George Washington Cubs have advanced to the quarter-finals in the District A. A. U. tournament now being sponsored by the Washington Post at Tech High. The Eastern Preps were defeated in their second round engagement last Wednesday night in the Tech High Gym, 42 to 28. The freshmen played the Emerson-Orme five, composed of high school stars, last night. Forrest Burgess, Eddie Romig, and Jack Connor all had an eye for the basket, and with the team also playing a fine floor game, the Frosh had little trouble in winning. The Cubs led the Preps by 19 to 11 at the end of the first twenty minutes of play.

In the second half the Freshmen widened the margin and the Preps were never able seriously to threaten the lead of the Cubs.

ELEVEN SEE GOUCHER GYM DEMONSTRATION

Nine major students in physical education, together with Ruth Atwell and Janet Jones, went to Baltimore-March 18 to see the gym demonstration program given by Goucher students.

The exhibition started at 8:15 in the Goucher gym and was in the nature of an interclass contest. The picked group from each class gave a demonstration of the particular type of work their class was engaging in. The seniors won the decision as doing their exercises more accurately and correctly than any of the other groups. Miss Atwell stated that she thought the events of the evening showed an exceptionally well organized Physical Education Department.

Dean Ruediger Talks To Parent-Teachers

Advocates Male Teachers For Girl Students In Address Before Johnson Association

Dean W. C. Ruediger of the School of Education was guest speaker at a meeting of the Johnson Parent-Teachers Association. In honor of Dean Ruediger, a special musical program was given; Miss Caroline Manning, contralto, sang Tosti's Serenata and other classical favorites; the Rich Sisters sang a group of Southern songs; Prof. Gene Stewart accompanied the singers, and also gave a few piano solos.

Dean Ruediger contributed to the program by giving a brief and witty address on the "Functions of Parent-Teacher Associations." He advocated that the school system appoint fifty percent men teachers. From practical experience it was pointed out that girls take much more interest in a subject taught by a man teacher.

Scarab Has Exhibition On Members' Drawings

Fraternity Holds Initiation on March 17 At Kenwood Country Club

Displaying to the public its multi-hued water colors, its charcoal, and its pen and ink sketches, the Fine Arts Department retained from Friday to Monday the Traveling Sketch Exhibition of Scarab, professional architectural fraternity.

Having served its tenure here, the exhibition passed on to the University of Virginia as one lap in its tour to the various chapters of Scarab, including those at Penn State, Carnegie Tech, Washington University, University of Minnesota and Southern California, Kansas University, Armour Institute of Technology, and University of Illinois.

On March 17, at the Kenwood Country Club, Ammon Chapter of Scarab held its initiation banquet. As guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Albert Harris, municipal architect of Washington, delivered an address on the advantages of belonging to the architectural profession.

Acting in the capacity of toastmaster, Wallace Lynn, treasurer of Scarab, called upon Prof. N. Grandall, director of the Department of Fine Arts, to speak. He also called upon each of the pledges to say something.

Never-ending search for truth

Today, in a locked room in the Crane laboratories, can be seen a cherry-red bar of metal. In a specially devised air-tight cylinder, under constant temperature of 1600° F., at fixed stress, it is being given the 1000 hour "flow" test. At the same temperature, at various stresses, it will be given the same test for the same time-period.

The tests are being made at the request of an oil man who has asked for valves for an experimental still, to operate at 1500° and 2500 pounds. Can he have them? At the end of the exhaustive tests, Metallurgist L. W. Spring will be able to tell him, exactly, authoritatively.

Since the first Crane chemical and testing laboratory was founded in 1888, thousands of similar questions so vital to safe and economical industrial progress, have been asked and answered. The contribution made by Crane metallurgists to scientific knowledge of the reaction of metals under high pressures and temperatures is known and respected throughout the world, is familiar to every oil man who has used the cracking process and every engineer who has to do with piping.

The truths discovered and scientific data collected are embodied in a book, Pioneering in Science. This is a reference manual invaluable to engineering students. Write for your copy.

19 G. W. STUDENTS TEACHING SCHOOL

Powers Places Education School Undergraduates For Practice Work

ALL SUBJECTS ARE GIVEN Purpose of Plan is to Give Actual Experience to Pupils Before Graduation

Nineteen student teachers, under the direction of J. O. Powers, have been placed in schools in the District and neighboring towns for the practice teaching which must be done before completing the course in the School of Education.

Since 1925, 74 students have been placed in schools, 38 of which were in the elementary schools and 31 in the junior high schools.

Each practice teacher must give 40 planned lessons under the supervision of a classroom teacher. Student teachers who are placed through Stephen F. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, are usually under teachers who are former George Washington University students.

Tuition Awarded

Dr. Powers recommended that teachers to whom practice teachers are sent should be awarded tuition equal to three semester hours at G. W. U.

English and history were taught with 26 and 21 students in each subject, respectively. Mathematics had the next highest group, with nine students. Physiology, geometry, French, and language had the least, with one each. Twenty-one students taught in the seventh grade, 31 in the eighth, and 9 in the ninth.

The purposes of practice teaching are that it gives a basis for recommending the students for teaching positions, serves as an apprenticeship, and develops skill in the student.

Observation Classes Formed

In observation of teaching, necessary before practice teaching may be done, 24 were enrolled in the fall class and 26 in the second semester.

Those doing practice teaching at present are as follows: Katherine Arends, Bethesda, under Miss Clara Sullivan; Elizabeth Beall, Eastern, under Miss Pauline Kneel; Thomas Brown, Central, under Mr. Lee Gilbert; Margaret Chapin, Silver Spring, under Miss Schwarz; Ruth Campbell, Bethesda, under Miss Clara Sullivan; Virginia Coffman, Macfarland Junior High, under Miss Waters; Edna Collins, Columbia Junior High, under Miss Ellen Hauff; Mildred Conklin, Stuart Junior High, under Miss Elizabeth Berryman; Virginia Crocker, McKinley, under Miss Ruth Stauffer; Heleh Drew, Macfarland Junior High, under Miss Ruth McGowan; Elizabeth Fielden, Gordon, under Miss DuBose; William Langborn, Jefferson, under Miss Campbell; Etheldu Minchart, Eastern, under Miss Elizabeth Jones; Margaret Monk, Eastern, under Miss Margaret Koehka; Catherine Rich, Western, under Miss Reeve; Catherine Shaw, Jefferson, under Miss Ida Harmel; Ruth Snedmen, Hubbard, under Mrs. Lee; Anna Wichell, Gordon, under Miss Elizabeth Draper; and Catherine O'Neill, Hine, under Miss Woodward.

CO-EDS WHO "GO OUT" RECEIVE HIGH GRADES

Survey of 200 Freshman Women Shows Going Out as Incentive To Better Work

The common belief that students of low scholarship reach that status because they go out evenings instead of studying, is merely an assumption, according to a study made last year of the effect of evening social activity on scholarship. The survey was made of 200 freshman women at Oxy and Mark Halls during the three quarters of 1928-1929.

Participation in social activities included attendance at the theater, dances, and bridge parties.

Conclusions reached after the study were that freshman women tend to go out more during their first quarter than in any other quarter of the first year, and students of high and low intelligence participate in the same kinds of social activities.

Sorority groups have a higher intelligence level than the non-affiliated, but there is a slightly stronger tendency for the non-sorority group to remain in school longer than the other in spite of its higher intelligence level. No particular types of social functions are peculiar to bright or dull, high or low scholarship student, the survey shows.

The main conclusion arrived at was that for some students, going out may prove as an incentive resulting in a happier college life and better work at school. For some it is probably the mark of such activities which has a marked effect on their grades through the inability to concentrate while they are in. —McGill Daily.

RAGATZ CHOSEN EDITOR FOR BOOK ASSOCIATION

Dr. Lowell J. Ragatz, Associate Professor of History, added another duty to his already long list, when he was appointed editor of the American Historical Association Book Publishing. His work starts April 1.

The American Historical Association is composed of national history professors and edits annual reports of the association, writes bibliographies of writings in American history which are published annually as well as volumes of documents such as the Calhoun Papers which will be brought out next year.

The head of the association is in Washington, and the books are printed in the Government Printing Office, under a Congressional appropriation. Three to five volumes are published each year.

NEGATIVE TEAM ENDS GIRLS' DEBATE TERM

Team Engages Swarthmore and Temple on Pennsylvania Tour

Concluding the formal season of women's debating, the affirmative team, Elizabeth Reeves, Genevieve Wimsatt, and Louise Falligant, contested against Temple University last Friday night and Swarthmore Saturday on the issue "Resolved, That the tendency to provide higher education for the masses should be discouraged." Both debates were held away from home, the team leaving here Friday.

For an additional debate, tentative arrangements have been made with the unbeaten women's team of American University. If this plan materializes, three women will be picked from the entire George Washington squad as being the best to debate against this seemingly invincible group.

According to Professor Yeager, the number of women who were out for debate this year was so small that their achievements are worthy of note. There have been nine debates but only in the first one, that with Penn State held on George Washington grounds, was there a decision. This was rendered by one judge, the professor of Public Speaking at Gettysburg College, and it was given to our negative team. The next debate was between this group and Swarthmore, and was also held in Washington. Then the affirmative contested against Ohio Wesleyan, at home, and then with Maryland at Maryland. Following this the negative went on a tour, engaging Cornell and Syracuse, while the affirmative defeated Pittsburgh here. The affirmative tour finished the season.

Professor Yeager also announced that Mr. Roberts, now a graduate student at Cornell, will be at George Washington next year as Assistant Professor of Public Speaking in charge of debate.

Cosmos Club Is Scene Of Engineer's Banquet

Dr. Davis Expresses Definite Views On Subject of "Training Engineers"

A group of George Washington engineering students attended a banquet at the Cosmos Club last Thursday, at which Dr. Harvey N. Davis, president of Stevens Institute of Technology, was the principal speaker. Dr. Davis spoke on "Training Engineers." Dr. Davis expressed the belief that skill of one particular effect does not imply skill in another, and that shop courses may be cut down with no professional loss to the student. This unsolicited statement was a compliment and surprise to our Engineering Department as the methods described by Dr. Davis are similar to those in use in George Washington. Beside his administrative work, Dr. Davis is known for his work in thermodynamics.

The banquet was held under the auspices of the Washington Section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and was attended by Alumni of Stevens and the student branches of Catholic University and George Washington.

The Fiftyth Anniversary Celebration of the A. S. M. E. will be observed in Washington April 7 to 9. The student branch of G. W. will conduct information booths at the Mayflower Hotel and the United States Chamber of Commerce throughout the celebration.

Y. W. C. A. MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE GIVES TEA

The Membership Committee of the Y. W. C. A. entertained at tea for the George Washington chapter of the organization and the cabinets of Maryland University and Gallaudet College at the Administration Building, March 25, from three to five o'clock. The cabinet of the George Washington University will be entertained at a similar function on a later date.

The week-end of May 10 was decided on as the one to be spent at Kamp Kahlert at the "Y" meeting held March 19 in W. L. Miss Lucy Street, National Director of Music of the Y. W. C. A., addressed the meeting on "Building Friendship Through Music," and at the close of her talk led the girls in singing "Y" songs. The social committee served luncheon to the faculty and members present.

DOYLE GOES TO MEETING

The films to be shown are "The Story of Gasoline" and "The Storage Battery," with a selected comedy. These films are of interest not only to the student in science but also to the automobile owner.

Dramatic Group Plans Presentation of Plays

Meetings Are Held Every First and Third Wednesday in Corcoran Hall 17

Plans for a program of three one-act plays were discussed at a meeting of the Drama Club last Wednesday night in Corcoran Hall. The club plans on presenting the plays at the University in the near future.

A feature of the program Wednesday night was dramatic readings by Wilhelmina Gude, Marian Moulden, Mary Crowley and Phyllis Mills. Members reported on plays read and divided up into groups to work on different plays. In a few weeks the final selection of the plays will be made for presentation.

Meetings of the Drama Club are open to anyone who is interested in the drama or the study of plays. At each meeting a program is prepared and plays are either read or given. In the interim of meetings the various members read types of plays and report on them at the next meeting.

Every first and third Wednesday of the month, meetings are held and all are welcome, according to Mary Crowley, president.

Radio Club Waits For New Operating Permit

Have Applied For License to Operate Portable Broadcasting Station, to Replace Stationary Set

The arrival of a new license for operating a portable wireless transmitter is eagerly awaited by members of the George Washington Radio Club. Application for the license was made by the club on the successful completion of a year's operation of G. W. U.'s wireless sending station, WSACV.

The members of the club wish to assert at this time that the delay of the Federal Radio Commission in renewing the permit is due not to their alleged interference with Army transmission six weeks ago, but to the fact that the new license is to be for a portable transmitter, the station formerly being operated only from the third floor of Corcoran Hall.

CARD PARTY CONDUCTED SUCCESSFULLY IN FRENCH

A most successful card party conducted entirely in French was given at the meeting of Le Cercle Gallia held last Thursday. Professor and Mme. Andre M. G. Goulet acted as hosts for the occasion. About five tables participated, and prizes were given at the end of the evening.

A lecture by M. Paul Gripon on a subject to be announced will be given at the next meeting, which will be held in the Phi Mu Rooms, 2024 G Street, Thursday evening, April 3 at 8 o'clock. M. Gripon will be remembered by all who had the pleasure of hearing his address on a previous occasion. Musical entertainment in some form is also being arranged.

Virginia Kinnard has been appointed secretary of the society to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mallette Spengler.

POSITIONS STILL OPEN IN TROUBADOUR ORCHESTRA

Although several applications have been received for the Troubadour Orchestra which will be formed for the first time next year, Musical Director Dan Beattie is awaiting the arrival of additional applications before replying to those now on hand.

Clarinet, saxophones, trumpets and drums are the instruments needed and applications should be sent to either Beattie or George Wells, at 1741 Rhode Island Avenue.

Beattie has also announced that all music submitted for future Troubadour productions must be in manuscript with at least the melody notes written. Manuscripts should be in as soon as possible as work on the 1930 show is to be started this summer.

WOMEN GIVE CO-EDS TALKS ON VOCATIONS

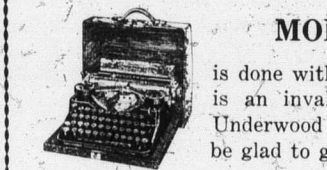

Chief of Women's Bureau of Department of Labor Will Speak On April 1

Mary Anderson, Chief of the Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, will speak to freshmen women on Tuesday, April 1, on the topic of "Vocations." Her talk will be illustrated by movies. Miss Anderson will be the third prominent woman to address the girls in the series of vocational talks arranged by Mrs. Barrows. Room 10, Building M, is the hall for these discussions, which are held at 12 o'clock.

Yesterday Major Julia C. Stimson, only woman major in the country, spoke on nursing as a vocation. Major Stimson served overseas in charge of nurses; she holds the same position here since the war. She is a graduate of Vassar, also having the degrees Sc. D., M. A., from Mt. Holyoke.

Inaugurated by Mrs. Alvin Dodd speaking on the general field of vocations for women, this series of lectures has attracted the interest of a fair representation of the girls of the first-year class. However, it would well repay the attention of a greater number of freshman girls and of girls in any class of the University. Outstanding in personal achievement, the women invited to speak are outstanding in charm and personality as well.

PARIS was bored—society had become blasé—tired of cafes and dancing and the same old thing—there was "nothing new under the sun" . . . and then came
